City's flood insurance in jeopardy

By Bob State
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The basement of a nearly completed residence in the Dobrey Slough area may jeopardize nearly $7 million in flood insurance coverage in the city.

Although city officials have been predominantly worried about bringing utilities to the home of Rick and Pam Pinkston, 2625 Pine St., it is the basement of the home that might prove the bigger issue, a federal official said Friday.

David Schein of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which administers the flood insurance program, said Friday, "If there is a basement in a flood hazard area ... it already has jeopardized the city's standing in the flood insurance program."

Schein said, "There should be no question as to whether the home is in a floodplain. If it has a basement and is in a floodplain, there is a problem."

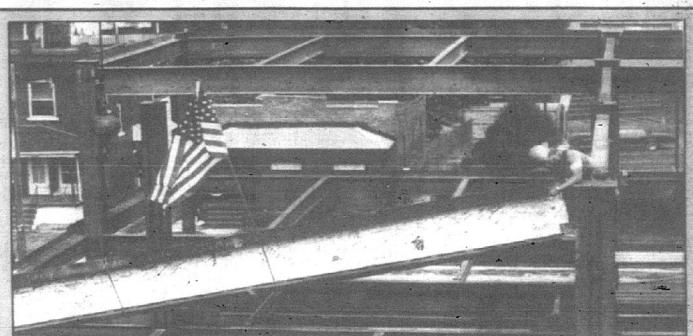

Although he didn't address the basement issue, Alderman Jeff Worthen convinced the city council to defer action Tuesday on conceiving with a zoning variance. A zoning recommendation to grant a variance for the Pinkstons. The variance would allow utility lines to the Pinkstons' newly constructed residence to remain below a floodplain elevation of 419 feet above sea level. The elevation 419 feet would occur once 100 years of flooding.

The Board of Appeals voted unanimously June 12 to recommend granting the variance as specified in the city's floodplain ordinance.

The council deferred action until a legal opinion can be obtained to determine if the project jeopardizes the city's standing in a national flood insurance program.

Dennis Foret of 2630 Pine St. attended the Board of Appeals meeting and expressed concern over how a variance would affect his flood insurance.

As of October 1990, there were over $6.9 million in insurance policies in the city providing (See FLOOD, Page 10A)

Bird destruction may net charges

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The destruction of part of a nesting area for endangered egrets and herons in the Tank Town area is expected to result in criminal charges being filed this week.

Law enforcement officials from the Illinois Department of Conservation said charges are planned.

About three dozen of the birds, which are on the federally protected species list, were killed last week by a tree-trimming firm hired to clear brush from the right-of-way around a natural gas pipeline.

Most of the dead birds were young and unable to fly.

The pipeline right-of-way runs through a grove of trees on Lake Drive near Morrison Road. The grove is the site of Illinois' largest rookery for large waterfowl.

Located a short distance from Long Lake, the grove is home to black-crested night herons, great egrets, cattle egrets and blue herons. All are federally protected and the night heron is also a state endangered species throughout.

Capt. David Cunningham of the Illinois Conservation Police said Friday his department was still in the process of conducting its investigation and had not decided if the charges would be filed against individuals or their employers, or both.

"This is the first time I've seen a large number of an endangered species killed by a single action," Cunningham said.

"Usually, it's a case of one individual killing one endangered animal. So this is outside our normal experience."

The pipeline and right-of-way are owned by Mississippi River Transmission Corp., a division of Arkla Inc., based in St. Jacob, Ill. That firm hired Aslund Tree Expert Co. in St. Louis to clear the right-of-way and the pipeline's path could be inspected from the air.

The work was stopped Wednesday morning, first by a vandal who slit the tires on the tree-trimming crew's equipment and then by officers Kim Rhodes and Rick Schulte of the conservation police.

On Thursday, a spokesman for Mississippi River Transmission said all work in the area has been stopped.

Including Mississippi River, Arkla and any firm contracted by them, no one currently is working in the area, the spokesman said.

Cunningham said that, under Illinois law, killing an endangered species is a Class A misdemeanor punishable by a $1,000 fine and up to a year in prison.

He said it would be possible to file a separate charge for each bird killed.

At least some of the deaths also violated federal laws, Cunningham said, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Administration is also investigating.

Cunningham said he is unsure what charges and penalties are possible.

Residents around the grove said the tree-trimming crew cut trees and branches containing nests and just let the baby birds fall to the ground.

The residents managed to find about a dozen of the birds still alive on the ground and saved them. Most of the rescued birds were taken to Treehouse Wildlife Center Inc. in Brighton.

Area driver dies after car's plunge

GRANITE CITY — A one-car accident near the Stages night club took the life of a 23-year-old Glen Carbon woman early Friday morning.

Mark Haskins, 6261 Illinois 162, Glen Carbon, was pronounced dead at 6:09 a.m. at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

According to Madison County Coroner Darla Burke, Haskins and another woman were traveling on the Illinois 203 frontage road near Stages at about 1:30 a.m. when Haskins, who was driving, apparently misjudged a sharp curve and drove off the pavement into a creek or ditch filled with water.

The car flipped over and the roof was crushed into the passenger compartment, apparently trapping Haskins inside the car. According to Madison Police Chief Charlie Brick, Patrolman Kevin Sipes dived into the water and pulled Haskins from the vehicle.

No information was given on how the other woman left the auto, and police would not disclose details, including the name of the woman and the extent of her injuries, until a report could be completed by Sipes. That report was not available at press-time.

Wolf loses Venice in new district

By Joe Carroll
Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — Rep. Wyvette Younge, D-East St. Louis, will lose part of her district to Centreville from Rep. Monroe Flinn as well as a parts of Madison and Venice from Rep. Sam Wolf, under a proposed new state legislative map.

Younge's new district, lost about 10,000 voters in the last decade, would gain a large number of black voters in predominantly Democratic areas. In exchange, Flinn's new district would gain some black areas of Belleville currently in Younge's district. Flinn is a Cahokia Democrat.

In addition to Alorton and Centreville, Younge would gain parts of Venice, Madison and Shiloh Valley Township.

"I was sad to lose Venice," said Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City. "I have a sentimental attachment to it. I was born and raised there. Under the new map, Wolf hands most of Venice over to Younge."

The Illinois Senate is expected to vote on the map this week. The House of Representatives has until June 30 to approve a new legislative district plan, but few lawmakers expect the proposal (See VENICE, Page 10A)

Curtis will retire; stop signs in Oaklawn area

By Bob Slatte
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The City Council took a number of actions on a full agenda Tuesday night.

The council also passed with regret the retirement of Patrolman Bill Curtis, effective July 2. Curtis has served on the department 22½ years.

The council also passed an ordinance establishing seven new stop signs in the Oaklawn Terrace residential subdivision.

The new stop signs will be placed on Terrace Lane northbound at its intersection with Richmond Avenue and Jayant Lane, and southbound at its intersections with Oaklawn Drive and Richmond; on Richmond Avenue at its intersection with Terrace; and at its intersection with Terrace; and on Oaklawn at its intersection with Terrace.

Seventh Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen said the Oaklawn subdivision was the only area in the city with no stop signs. He said increased traffic in the subdivision has resulted from the construction necessitating placement of the new signs.

First Ward Alderman Juanita Crawley, chairman of the City Hall and Housing Committee, announced that remaining signs would be placed throughout City Hall in accordance with a state statute.

The council also recommended that the city enter into an agreement with Specialized Services Inc. for use of city-owned property located at 1836 Madison Ave. Specialized Services would provide labor to sort plastic at the site for a proposed recycling

College board reduces computer technician's pay raise

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

In an effort to correct a mistake in job classifications, the Belleville Area College board Wednesday night decided to reduce the salary raise for one of the college's employees.

The council also asked the city to prepare an amendment to its contract, requesting refuse collection containers for commercial and industrial property.

The council urged tougher regulations regarding pickup frequency and container capacity and strength.

Aldermen referred for committee review a lone bid of $102.16 on a car formerly driven by retired Safety Director Dick Portell.

Klein's performance but only the salary of the position.

Trustee Ted Farmer voted against the salary adjustment. He said that Klein, as a union member, her salary should not be changed because of a union complaint. "The message we are sending is either the union or be downgraded," Farmer said.

He said the downgrade would give the appearance that BAC was violating the Labor Relations Act by favoring union employees over non-teaching employees.

College Personnel Director Larry Friederich said he was not aware Klein was not a union member when he recommended the raise reduction. The trustees approved higher job grades and pay hikes for seven other non-teaching positions at the college.

Lawsuit questions ownership of store

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

The ownership of a Collinsville convenience store is questioned in a lawsuit filed this month in Madison County Circuit Court.

Marilyn Richey of Collinsville claims that the estate of Fred J. "Bob" Beckman should not include interest in Chinet's Quick Shop, 520 Ramada Blvd.

Named in the suit is former St. Louis football Cardinal line-man Dan Dierdorf, who is the trustee of Beckman's estate and in charge of trusts for Beckman's widow, ex-wife and four children as outlined in a will filed May 15 at his Chesterfield, Mo., home. He had been ill with cancer.

Beckman bought the Dave Mallett Ford dealership in Collinsville in 1970 after working for the Hertz Corp. in East St. Louis for 11 years.

After 13 years of business in Metro East, he relocated his dealership to Ellisville, Mo. One of his daughters, Laura Anderson, owns the Laura Buick Pontiac GMC agency in Collinsville.

Disputed are 50 shares in the convenience store that Beckman bought on Aug. 9, 1977. But

Neighbors honor Marine back from Desert Storm

Marine Sgt. Joseph T. Goodrich was honored at a block party held in the 3200 block of Franklin Avenue on June 7.

Goodrich served in Operation Desert Shield and Operation Desert Storm. After a speech by Rod Key welcoming him home, Goodrich thanked all for their support during his tour of duty.

Don Smith led prayer and a poem was read.

Attending were the honoree's father, Thomas Goodrich; sister, Ann Jackson with husband, Steve, and son, Stevie; brother, Steve Goodrich; aunts, Uncle, Karen and Donald Goodrich; and 50 friends and neighbors.

Alderman Judy Whitaker assisted with the party.

Goodrich and soldiers of the Weapons Company, 81st Mortar Platoon, 1st Battalion, 1st Marines, 1st Marine Division, arrived in Saudi Arabia from Camp Pendleton, Calif. Jan. 27.

The unit was put into Task Force "Papa Bear" and on Feb. 23 crossed into Kuwait, breaching Iraqi defense lines and moving up to Al Jaber Field.

From there, the Marines advanced to the Al Burgan oil fields and finally to the International Airport in Kuwait City. The battalion returned to Camp Pendleton on April 6.

Goodrich returned to Granite City on May 6. The neighborhood greeted him by displaying American flags, ribbons and signs.

Land given to Humane Society

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

After years of considering a transfer of land to the Madison County Humane Society, a decision to do so was nearly delayed again Wednesday by the Madison County Board.

Member Robert Stille, D-Edwardsville, asked that the transfer of nearly an acre be delayed until State's Attorney William Haine determined whether the society planned to do any grooming, kenneling and providing boarding and neutering services. Stille also added the possibility of the shelter selling animal-related items such as dog food.

He has no objections to the Humane Society, "they have always done a wonderful job," said Stille, who is in favor of the land transfer. "There are some unanswered questions like what are they going to do over there."

But several members spoke against delaying the measure.

"This proposal has been kicked around in various committees for the last three years," said Donald Reid, D-Fonda Beach. Reid said the appealing aspect is only for holding pens for adoptable animals and any grooming would be to clean dogs prior to their adoption. Any medical treatment would be provided by a licensed veteran and any items that would be sold would be "incidental," Rea said. "They might sell a collar or something to take the dog out with it."

Currently, the humane society rents kennel space at the county's animal control center on Illinois 143, north of Edwardsville. The land currently given to the society is just west of the location. The society will build its own facility on the property.

Rea said the transfer of property would enhance the society's future. "We have raised nearly $81,000 has been collected. Rea also said that if the society were to use the facility for anything other than animal adoptions, the land and any building on it would return to the county."

"We can't lose in any way," Rea said. "In fact, we would gain a building in that event."

There was some discussion Wednesday of press for profit but it was pointed out that the society is a tax-exempt, non-profit organization.

"Whenever the Humane Society makes money I want to apply for a job down there," said Michael Semanisin, D-Colleville.

Rea said that the restrictions on what the society can do on the property will be discussed when the society applies for a special-use zoning permit. Nick Hamer, D-Edwardsville, said he had consulted the United States Department of Agriculture regarding use restrictions and was told that the only restriction was that medical procedures be performed by a licensed veterinarian.

Following the lengthy discussion, the resolution passed unanimously.

Ledy VanKavage of Collinsville, a resident of the society, attended the meeting along with seven volunteer workers. "I was a little worried," VanKavage said of the members' discussion. "But I'm definitely a happy camper."

VanKavage said kenneling and dog grooming services were never an issue.

"Grooming would be done only in that we wouldn't send a stinky dog home with someone," VanKavage said.

In the future, "about 100 years," VanKavage said, she would like to see on-site neutering services and the establishment of an animal care service to help animals injured on roadways, a service already offered by the Humane Society of Missouri.

VICTORY

A Special
Collector's Edition
Dedicated to the Fighting
Men & Women
of Desert Storm

On August 2, 1990, the army of Iraq invaded and conquered the neighboring oil-rich nation of Kuwait. On January 16, 1991, an air raid on the Iraqi capital of Baghdad marked the beginning of Operation Desert Storm, the military campaign launched by an American-led coalition of forces to expel Iraq from the nation it had so brutally acquired. Victory in the Gulf is a large, full-color, 128-page book that documents that momentous and violent undertaking, from the first troops arriving in August to the final, grueling ground war that gave victory to the Allies.

In Victory in the Gulf you'll find:

- Scores of dramatic photographs of the war, many of which have never been published before.
- Stories of American and allied soldiers during the ground war.
- Insightful commentary on each image.

In its compellingly visual presentation, Victory in the Gulf provides a gripping account of the most important world event in the post-Cold War era.

Couple returns from trip through Southeast

Correspondent Maxine Duniphan covers the Mitchell area for the Press-Record-Journal.

LeRoy and Shirley Stark of Maryville, Rose have returned from a tour of the Southeastern United States. They visited several old Army forts where through sight and sound the were in touch with a piece of history. They entered fort and museum held important events in the history of our country, the couple said the visit to Fort Morgan at the entrance to Mobile Bay, Ala., proved to be the most interesting.

The Starks had traveled through Kentucky and Tennessee and into Tupelo, Mississippi, where they made their first major stop to see the birth place of Elvis Presley. Then to view the gardens and the chapel.

Then it was on to Mobile, Alabama, to visit Fort Morgan, the last of the Confederate Army forts to fall. After traveling miles on the Panhandle Highway, they arrived at the place where they expected to see the fort, but there was not fort in sight.

But a closer look revealed that his was due to the design of the fort, and not where they were at the place. They soon discovered that beyond the slope of the glaciis there awaited a wonderful experience, a walk through history.

The glaciis which screened the fort from enemy fire now sports the seven flags that have flown over Mobile Point.

The flags of France, Britain, Spain, the United States, the Alabama, Mississippi, (Montgomery being the Confederacy), and the State of Alabama were all once flown over the fort.

After entering the fort and crossing the court yard, they came to a point where they could see the fort across the spot where the revenue ship, the Monitor Tecumseh, went down after striking a torpedo Aug. 5, 1864.

It was with the loss of this ship and the confusion in the Union battle lines which prompted Admiral Farragut to give his famous order, "Damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead." A nearby monument states that 96 officers and enlisted men went down with the ship.

The most interesting was the now-dry moat that surrounds the fort, built to prevent the enemy from rushing the walls, and the wood-lined magazines that held the black powder necessary to fire.

Cannon balls fired from the guns were sometimes heated to a white hot glow before being fired at the wooden ships, in an effort to set enemy ships afire.

Access to the fort was only accessible by water during most of its history, all supplies had to be landed at this wharf.

Due to the strategic importance of this fort, a part of the fort was destroyed during World War II and a gun mount was constructed to facilitate the turning of a 155 mm Howitzer.

While in the bay area the Starks toured the battle ship the U.S.S. Alabama and enjoyed a collection of airplanes representing all branches of the armed services.

Aboard the U.S.S. Alabama a WW II veteran posed beside the big guns of the ship for his wife to take a picture. They also toured the USS Drum Submarine.

The travelers continued their trip, stopping at the palatial home of President Jefferson Davis, the one and only president of the Confederate States. The estate, which is known as the Beauvoir (which means beautiful view), is located on the Gulf of Mexico overlooking the snow white sands of the gulf beaches. The house sports a museum of both family and civil war memorabilia.

Nearby is a Confederate cemetery where the tomb of the Unknown Confederate Soldier is located.

When the Starks left the Biloxi area headed for Texas, they made a stop in New Orleans, La., where they did some shopping in the French Quarter and had a seafood dinner while watching "fish in an aquarium.

Then they took a stroll down Bourbon Street where they enjoyed the unusual wrought iron architecture.

After a break in New Orleans, they continued their trip to Dallas to visit a niece, Pam LaPlant, her husband, Craig and children, Christina and Michael. En route, they stopped in Dallas, Texas, to visit the Sam Houston Home and Museum.

The Starks returned home with the film in hand that would produce the pictures that will help them to relive this bit of history over as often as they wish.

She was preceded in death by her father, Ralph Mosier, and a grandmother, Tiny Robinson.

Beatrice Salmon, 71, of Madison died at 4:12 p.m. Friday, June 14, 1991, at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Mrs. Salmon was born Feb. 15, 1920, in Itasca, Miss., and had been a resident of the Metro East area for the past 45 years. She was a member of the Trinity Church of God in Christ, Madison.

Spearman

Samuel Fitzgerald Spearman, 26, of East St. Louis died at 10:29 p.m. Sunday, June 16, 1991, in Memorial Hospital, Belleville.

Mr. Spearman was born Sept. 3, 1964, in East St. Louis and was a lifelong resident. He was formerly employed as a custodian for the Potters Electric Co. for five years and was a member of the St. Mark Church of God in Christ, East St. Louis.

Survivors include his parents, Artie and Christine Spearman of East St. Louis; two sisters, Janora and Brunetta Spearman, both of East St. Louis; and four brothers, Eddie, William and Phillip Spearman, both of East St. Louis, and Ernest Spearman and Cleotha Spearman, both of Madison.

Funeral services were held Saturday at the St. Mark Church of God in Christ, with Elder Claude Ratliff, pastor, officiating. Burial was in the cemetery of the church.

The couple had been separated for several weeks when the slaying occurred July 27. Tracy had filed for divorce June 7.

Hayden, 31, of Belleville, often comments before sentencing and shows no reaction when the ruling was read by Associate Judge James M. Radcliffe. Hayden was eligible for up to 60 years in prison.

Hayden said he wanted to deter others and let people know that wife-killing will not be allowed.

He also said he wanted Hayden going long enough so he would not be involved in his lives of his children until they are old enough to fend for themselves. The couple had two children; Daniel is 5 and Gertrude is 2. The children are living with Tracy's family now.

Radcliffe gave Hayden credit for time served and recommended psychiatric evaluations.

Defense attorney James Gomric said he will appeal the case based on what he said was pretrial testimony from Mrs. Hayden's father during the trial and because Radcliffe failed to offer the jury second-degree murder, a lesser offense, as an option when they were deciding coverage, Schein said.

While Schein emphasized he was unaware of the specifics of the Pinkston's request, he said:

"The fact that the residents requested a utility variance would lead me to believe they are in a flood hazard area. And if they are, they should not have been allowed to build a basement," Schein said.

Pinkston declined to comment, and Rick Pinkston was unavailable Friday, prior to the hearing. Pinkston said his basement was at the level required of floodplain construction.

Schein said, "The problem (allowing basements to be built in a flood hazard area) is that it's a concern in the Dobrey Slough area," and said Granite City would probably be getting a visit from the FEMA office "very soon."

Worthen explained, "The Pinkston's are on the borderline of the (1971) moratorium on building in the Dobrey Slough area."

The city's current floodplain ordinance, adopted after the Pinkstons began construction in 1971, makes it illegal to build a basement in a flood hazard area.

The city's engineering office recommended the Pinkstons relocate their utilities "would definitely cause a hardship."

It would probably cost them about $10,000 to move the furnace and change the ductwork. They would probably have to fill their basement with sand" if the variance was granted, Worthen said.

But Worthen said the city's engineering department strongly recommended to the Pinkstons several times prior to construction not to build a basement at the location. Employees in the engineering office confirmed Worthen's statement.

Hanke said the Pinkstons were named as co-defendants in a complaint filed by Madison County State's Attorney William Haune on Feb. 19. The complaint alleged the Pinkstons violated a county moratorium when they began construction.

Haune later dismissed the suit against the Pinkstons "because I believe it would be unreasonable to proceed against them."

They are average people who, in good faith, purchased this land, received building permits issued by the City of Granite City, and their home is about 96 percent completed."

Worthen's opinion, "The only reasonable remedy at this time is granting the variance, which allows the people the risk of having the utilities below the 100-year flood level."

Another area property owner, Ken Elliff of 2644 Pine, addressed the Board of Appeals

Steve Lathrop of Ramm Development remains party in the Haine lawsuit. Lathrop developed the 100-acre Pine Street house and is also involved in controversial plans to develop a subdivision in Dobrey Slough, at the end of Pine Street.

Public Works Director Brett Hanke characterized the requested variance as "an opportunity to correct an injustice, and at the same time keep within the provisions of the floodplain ordinance."

He said the city, out of ignorance, never initiated a variance through construction that there was a problem with the floodplain ordinance.

"We found out later that we could jeopardize the city's standing in the flood insurance program if we allowed something like this to occur."

Hanke said, "There is a hole in the regulations which allows for variances in the case of hardship. I believe this to be the case. The city allowed the Pinkstons to build a basement in the Dobrey Slough area."

Worthen's opinion, "The only reasonable remedy at this time is granting the variance, which allows the people the risk of having the utilities below the 100-year flood level."

Another area property owner, Ken Elliff of 2644 Pine, addressed the Board of Appeals regarding the proposed variance.

While he said he did not object to the variance, he said he was concerned as to whether the action would adversely affect his property.

Elliff said he was concerned that, if anything should happen to the Pinkstons' property, the house might be abandoned and allowed to become rundown.

Hanke stressed that the variance would apply only to the Pinkstons' property, and that the risks involved would be entirely theirs.

The floodplain ordinance requires the city engineer to notify any applicant that increased flood insurance premiums and increased risks to life and property will result from granting such a variance. It also requires the applicant to assume all additional risk and liability.

"I wouldn't even know where to begin," Goldenberg said.

The variance was granted under the conditions of our 'exceptional hardship' criteria, there would be no problem. I don't have the specific of the request, but the hardship criteria are very specific."

But Schein said the existence of a basement in a newly constructed residence in the flood hazard area poses a much larger problem than the utility variance does.

"It communities allow building basements in a floodplain, there are some serious problems," Schein said.

He said on Friday that Goldenberg did not plan to research the possibility of jeopardizing flood insurance. Worthen said he would contact Goldenberg to clarify his request.

hood of about 65 percent, he said.

Adding Marine, Albion, and Douglas to the new map would help him make up the 2,000 residents he lost during the last decade.

Rep. Terry Deering, D-DuBois, would lose all of Perry County under the new map, he said.

Unlike most of his counterparts, he was not worried about the proportion of Democrats in his district.

"Where I'm from, people are more concerned with the person, not so much the party he belongs to," he said. "So it doesn't really matter all that much what my percentage of Democratic voters is."

"If they don't like the way I do my job, they will let me know."

done violence because some man cannot stand his wife leaving him and can't follow a court order," Haida said. "I believe this defendant should be punished severely."

"The state's argument ignores the facts and statements from doctors which acknowledged that Timothy Hayden suffers from a mental illness," he said.

Hayden suffered a "rage reaction" when he tried to talk to his wife, who refused. Gomric said, "That action provoked the attack, he added."

But Radcliffe said he was not convinced that the wife-killing was not an act of provocation.

"All the evidence presented showed the defendant was a person who planned to kill his wife, who did not want to talk to his wife, who got a knife and stabbed her," he said.

State's Attorney Robert Haida had asked for a severe sentence, saying that an element of premeditation was obvious in the case. He was granted a mistrial and was allowed to get a knife after seeing his wife in the bar with several girl friends.

Defense attorney James Gomric said he will appeal the case based on what he said was pretrial testimony from Mrs. Hayden's father during the trial and because Radcliffe failed to offer the jury second-degree murder, a lesser offense, as an option when they were deciding for the victim's family during the trial and had to ask for the judge's removal earlier in the case.

In court Wednesday, Gomric testified that Radcliffe's wife had called him Sunday (June 16) to say she was leaving him. However, the specific nature of the call was discussed in chambers.

However, Associate Judge Richard A. Aguirre ruled that the motion to remove Radcliffe was not filed in a timely manner. He said Gomric had heard allegations about Radcliffe's conversations and his wife's connection to the victim's family during the trial and had to ask for the judge's removal earlier in the case.

Buddy Holly play to be open run

"The Buddy Holly Story," a musical that originally closed on Broadway, will be produced on an open-run basis by the Muny this winter in the 650-seat Edison Theater on the Washington University campus.

The Muny now before has presented a show on an open-run basis, which means it will be performed as long as audience interest holds out.

The show will be performed by local and regional comedians, such as is used by the Repertory Theater of St. Louis.

This could signal the start of a little competition between the Muny and the Rep, which is a much smaller venue than the Fox Theater, where The Muny traditionally schedules many of its winter productions.

Tickets for the first three weeks of "The Buddy Holly Story" will be offered in winter-season tickets on a first-come, first-served basis.

More Muny morsels

"It's Delovely," It's Cafe Porter. The Muny's first show of the summer season, attracted only 7,420 patrons—about 66 percent of the theater's capacity—during opening night Monday.

Subscription sales for the summer season were more upbeat, finishing at 14,570, up 3 percent from last year. The season's total is second only to the 1986 summer season, when attendance was boosted by the first appearance in St. Louis of "Cats."

Planning for the winter season is in full swing, with the mega-hit "City of Angels" and "Jerome Robbins' Broadway" tentatively scheduled.

Also in the planning stages is a new production of "La Mocha," headlined by a "star" of major stature who never has done the show. However, Muny sources are keeping mum on the name of the star.

'Dying Young' painful to see

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

"Dying Young" is a maudlin, dull and pointless film about a wealthy young man with leukemia who finds happiness when a legless woman pays some attention to him in exchange for $400 a week and a free room with private bath.

The film, with a pretense for the great drama it never achieves, stars Julia Roberts as Hilary O'Neil, a girl from San Francisco who arrives in a companion and care for the young man. The patient is Victor Geddes, the wealthy son of a prominent attorney played by Campbell Scott.

Victor, who has been taking chemotherapy treatments on and off for the last year, is stem the spread of his disease, is about to start another round of treatment when Hilary enters his life.

The film is meant to be the painful tale of a young man desperately trying to find a woman to love before it is too late. It is supposed to be a relationship story of great purpose and sacrifice. But its attempts fail in all three areas.

Victor comes across as a thoroughly unsympathetic character whose real disease is a terminal case of self-indulgence.

"Dying Young" is a long, painful journey for the audience. Nothing will expire in this motion picture save for your ability to feel for it.

Rated R (a few lovemaking scenes, language.) Running time: 117 minutes.

Licenses, permits issued

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — An addition to a billiards parlor and renovations to a former business were among the building permits and business licenses authorized recently by the Village Board.

The board also accepted a bid of $1,874 to replace the furnace in the Village Hall.

Acceptance of the bid submitted by Accurate Air Heating and Cooling of East Chain Bridge Road, Milledgeville, was made by the board by Trustee Marvin Ribbing, who chaired the committee. Three bids were opened June 11 at the Village Hall.

A 60 by 22-foot addition to Side Pocket Billiards in the Oakmont Plaza Shopping Center, 4000 block of Pontoon Road, was proposed by Jim Green and approved by the board.

The addition will be located in an area of the shopping center that had never been completed with exterior lights and two new restrooms. A wall will be moved to contain the new section, trustees were told.

Trustee Robert Douglas asked whether the addition will affect existing firewalls in the building. No one could give an immediate answer.

"He's just remodeling the area and it's up to the building inspector to enforce the building codes," Trustee Louis Whitsell said.

Approval was given for the building permits by Trustees Bob Abel, Loren Madison, Marvin Ribbing, Whitsell and Irene Karlechuk. Douglas voted "no."

Several other license and permit applications were introduced.

Gary Askew, a contractor, obtained a building permit to renovate and perform electrical work at 4145 Pontoon Road, formerly known as Gwen's Frozen Foods.

James Ridings and Bonnie Campbell received a license to operate a business at that address, selling frozen custard and yogurt.

Askew also was granted a building permit to construct a new addition and renovate a building at 4149 Pontoon Road.

The 1,600-square-foot addition will be located at the rear of the building and the front wall will be changed to glass.

Bonnie Campbell and James Ridings were granted a business license to operate a new retail furniture sales store at that location under the name of Jim-n-J Furniture Store.

Ed Moore was given the OK to build a pole barn at 1122 Madison, the proposed location in Illinois 111, off State At 35 (Horseshoe Lake Roads).

The trustees reviewed plans for the structure, which will be used to store boats and cars.

Vickie Watkins was granted a business license to operate Hot Dog Heaven and More at 3988 Lake St. The facility is at the rear of Smokey Joe's Tavern and was formerly used as a fish stand.

A license was authorized for Steve and Sandy Kraus to operate Club Excellent Entertainment at 3670C Illinois 111 for the "under-18 crowd."

Susan Shafer was granted a license for the rental of gym equipment and concrete supplies (forms) at 3670 (rear) Illinois 111.

The action was necessary to comply with the 911 emergency telephone system data-base requirement that all roads have names, not numbers.
